say that the latter cannot be done in the case of this system, by Isaac Pittman himself, with sufficient despatch to render it available for the only purpose in the world for which the art is worth learning.

It would be easy to show any person in the least degree conversant with stenographic characters, and the principles which govern their application that if ever it was true in any case, it is in abreviated writing—that simplicity is the leading element of perfection; and that the leading and indispensable requisite for an artist who would excel, is not the use of a long, or diffuse system, so minute in detail to meet every case, and render every anomaly in our orthography tangible to our sense of seeing, through the medium of a set of arbitrary characters—but they are of a concise, clear, and simple one, easily practised, and which, by the aid of a well disciplined memory and persevering industry, will be clear enough for him alone who will go to the personal cost of their exertions to at

In the meantime, we will only observe that this phonography is just about se great a farce as mneumotechny, and its professor, Fittman, in effrontery quackery, and humbug, not a whit behind the no-torious Gouraud, Greeley & Co., Arcades Ambo.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS .- Amongst the numerous causes of complaint that exist in the conduct and mode of cenducting their business by the cab, hack, and omnibus drivers, there is none that merits more severe reprehension than the shameless disregard for the comforts of the poor dumb ani-mals, that earn for these heartless jarvies their living. It is more than a man of properly regu-lated feelings can look at passively—more than any well regulated society should tolerate to see orses jogging under the unsparing lash of the whipper in from morning till night, overladen, and probably under fed, and actually disabled by oppression, cruelty, and neglect. More than two or three cases came under our notice yesterday of this sort. In one, the poor brute had but three legs available for service; in another, the breast was excoriated and so lacerated by the constant friction of the harness as to be one mass of raw flesh. Now, this is too bad. The horse-the beau tiful, the noble, the docile horse, should not re-ceive treatment far 100 had for the untameable Hyena; and least of all, should this prevail in enlightened America. We think there are laws applicable to these case of cruelty to animals, and we invite the earnes attention of our municipal authorities to enforce them; and we suggest that those who continue to offend be sent to learn from the Bedouin Arabs what they have failed to acquire in the midst of

CHARLESTON, July 1st, 1844. Changes in the City, and its Civilization-The Murder of Lyons again-Mesmerism and Hum

Six-Our city has heretofore been proverbial fe its languid and unvarying monotony, rather than for any great variety of incident; of late it has, however, undergone a most remarkable change in that particular, insomuch that were one of its in-habitants for the last five years, to compare it now with what it was, he would be somewhat startled by the contrast, if he did not actually entertain a momentary doubt of its identity. The great fire of 1838, which left so large a waste where now ha momentary doubt of its identity. The great fire of 1838, which left so large a waste where now habitations spring up as by enchantment, has not more changed is outward form, than recent occurrences have the moral character of its population. But yesterday, and it was a place where every thing around suggested only images of quiet and repose; now assassinations, suicides, robberies, brawls, and even elopements, are familiar things, with which the public appetite is daily fed, even to satiety. From amid scenes ao fertile in incidents, an occasional communication, should the present writer be deemed one whose lucubrations are worthy of a place in your journal, may possibly interest its readers, perhaps even subserve some better and more useful purpose.

The excitement consequent on the murder of Lyons has partially subsided, and with it the suspicion only ridiculous, if it had notabeen propagated so extensively as to become cruel and unjust, that his friends were the perpetrators of that atrocity. This suspicion it is believed, originated in individual malice, and gained strength because of the absence of any one on whom the public mind, in its excited condition, could, with any thing like an approach to plausibility, fasten the accusation. Whilst on this subject, permit me to mention for the cellightenment of the world at large, but more especially that portion of it which composes the medical inculty and the police, a new theory in the art of discovering crimes, which, perhaps, those of your city may turn to better account than the learned Thebans who have for the first time originated it here. Should it ever become of practical application, it will form a new epoch in the history of ted it here. Should it ever become of practical ap-plication, it will form a new epoch in the history of human discovery. The name of its inventors will live in the pantheon of history when that of Gali-human discovery. The name of its inventors will live in the pantheon of history when that of Galileo is forgotten.

It is said that several wise men, disciples of the school of Mesmerism, undertook to apply this new whim wham in a manner worthy of an age of witch-craft. A female was selected and put under the mesmeric sleep with a view that she should tehold and proclaim to the world the murderer of Lyons. Ancient tradition furnishes nothing of the incantations of the Thessalian wizard which equals the portentous revelations made on this occasion. With astounding accuracy she pointed to the true author of the deed—described him minutely even to his very beard and breeches. (She must have been something of a sentimentalist.) Not satisfied even with this, she beheld a den where he was to be found, surrounded by the blood-stained spoil torn from the victim. The officers of jusice were immediately in requisition—already the felon was in imagination within their grasp—visions of rewards floated before their minds. They repaired to the spot big with hopes of discovery. There must have been some error in the experiment—no trace of the murderer or the spoils was found!

In the meantime, men of sober reflection and dispassionate judgment are at a loss to which of the actors in this most striking and interesting drama, to accord the lottiest tribute of admiration—the heroes or the heroine—those who dared to palm on the credulity of society an imposture so infamous and insulting, or she who submitted to be the passive instrument in us accomplishment—the learned quacks who played the part of scientific blunderers, or the wierd sister who became a lying prophetess?

Amusements.

(ky-Two Giant sees, a Giant, and two Dwarfs, all to be seen at the same time, is an event of the most extraordinary description. Such a circumstance, however, occurs at the American Museum to morrow, it being the last day and henefit of the Giant and Giantess, who, anxious to provide an entertainment worthy of the patronage of the public, have engaged for this occasion a Dwarf and Giantess. So that we shall behold the most curious scene in existence. It will be rich to see the two Dwarfs each endeavoring to look least, and the two Giantesses trying to appear tallest. The Giant, we preaume, will look down on them all. The Infant Sisters, Great Western und wife, and a host of other talented performers appear. There will be an entertainment in the afternoon and also in the evening.

67-RABINEAU'S HOT, COLD, SWIMMING AND SHOWER BATHS, foot of Desbrosses street.—No establishment in this or any other city can bear any comparison, in point of heaith, comfort and personal convenience, to this admirably and well regulated preservative of heaith and comfort. We advise those in health to try the capacious swimming and shower baths; and to the rheumatic and decrepit, the pure, hot, salt water baths. To all, at every season, these baths furnish every accommodation. Mr. R's new baths, at 61 cents, at the foot of Morton street, are justly encouraged.

AT THIS SEASON OF THE YEAR, WHEN we look around us and see so many causes to produce cho.era morbus, diarrhoss, cramps and spasms, we are struck with amazement that heads of families who possess all the faculties of providing for those entrusted to their care, should neglect to keep always at hand a bottle of Bernard's Diarrhos Medicine.

Cholera morbus and all other affections of the stomach and bowels are diseases simple in their commencement but how soon do they run into a graver form? A sistic cholera itself is but one step from a neglected cholera morbus and diarrhosa.

Since the 1st instant the money market has been unu sually easy. The payment of large dividends on State, Bank, Insurance and other stocks, has thrown into the MR. EDITOR:—The reason why New Yorkers pay a disproportion of the taxes is, that in some of the other counties of this State, the assessors tax the people thus:—They estimate the land at the fair value, and pay tax on only one third of such value, while in this city we sometimes have our estate valued at more than it sells for at auction, and pay on its full value. Some legislative instruction seems to be necessary to be given to the various assessors in the various districts.

The movements of the private bankers in this market during the past year; the success they have met with in their operations, and the benefits they have conferred on the commercial classes, have established the fact, that one half of the many banks now in existence in this city and State are worse than useless. They are compelled to resort to every expedient to sustain themselves against the growing strength of the many private bankers annually springing up in all our large cities. The power of the local banks has departed from them—it has been usurped bythose who know how to use it more judiciously. We consider the establishment of private banking houses in this country one of the most important financial movements made since the destruction of the old United States Bank. In regulating the price of money, the rates of domestic exchanges, the state of the money market, and the system of credits; they in a measure prevent those dreadful revulsions in the meney market, we have heretofore so often experienced. It is gratifying to see capi-tal accumulating in the hands of those who devote it to

The Supreme Court of Massachusetts, in the case of the Nahant Bank, has decided that stockholders, holding stock as trustees, were liable to the same extent as other stockholders, for the debts of the bank; but that executors and administrators, holding stock as such, were only liable to the extent of the assets which came into their hands from the extent of the assets which came into their hands from e estates which they represented.

191.723 67.118 Bills chartering the Bank du Peuple of Montreal and the Bank of the Nisgara District, have received the assent of the Home Government. The charters of these Banks hold the managing stockholders responsible to the full extent of their property, while the other stockholders are only liable for the amount actually paid in.—This principle is sound, provided the managing stock holders are men of undoubted wealth, etherwise the effect of it is lost. In Montreal, the managers would undoubtedly be the right kind of men, but in the country it would be difficult to find counts, sufficiently wealth, the would be difficult to find enough sufficiently wealthy to carry on a bank. The liability imposed by this system on those who have charge of the interests of others is peron those who have charge of the interests of orders a per-fectly just and proper, and exerts a wholesome restraint on their movements. In most of our banking institutions, those who are without responsibility, have the greatest control of the affairs of the bank, and have the power at any time to ruin hundreds, who have entrusted them with

BY THE SOUTHERN MAIL.

nce of the New York Herald ]

PHILADELPHIA, July 6, 1844. We are in the midst of another sectarian excitement. The public mind had become perfectly tranquilized. The 4th of July parade had gone off o the entire satisfaction of all parties-every man among the natives had retired to his home and his labors, in too good a humour with himself and the apparent triumphant display of his party to meditate harm against any one, and the bitter feeling of opposition to a particular sect, and of proscriptiveness on account of birth, was rapidly giving way to a nore sober state of feeling, when suddenly all the elements of discord were awakened by the ostentatious introduction, by authority of the Governor of the Commonwealth, of some 70 or 80 stand of arms into St. Philip's de Neri church, in Queen street, near Second, Southwark. This took place as you will learn by the morning papers, in the course of Friday afternoon.

Rumors of the casting of bullets, manufacture of cartridges, &c., had been circulated for some days, but no credit was attached to them, and they pased off as the coinage of idle brains; but the fact of cart loads of arms going into the church with so a adequate cause, revived the angry feelings which had been quieted, and gave those rumors the semblance and effect of truth. At an early hour in the evening, the news had spread like wild fire, and before 8 o'clock, Queen, Second and Third streets, were crowded by from six haudred to one thousand people, autering a variety of threats and gathering about in menacing squads, "nursing heir wrath to keep it warm." Aldermen Horiz, Palmer, and Sanders were quickly on the ground with an organized posse, and at 9 o'clock the Sheriff arrived. He immediately summond a posse of twenty men, at the head of whom he placed wright Ardis, one of the wounded in the Kennington riots, and orderous entered with and creden number of men und with, but crackers, theses, and supplied with crackers, theses, and supplied with crackers, these, and supplied with crackers, the supplied with crackers, the supplied with crackers to the supplied with crackers, the supplied with the supplied with the supp
